

About René...

San Francisco singer/songwriter, René's latest single, 'Polvo Eres y Polvo Serás' is a 45th anniversary tribute to David Bowie's 'Ashes To Ashes' and features his younger brother, José Luis Peraza, on acoustic guitars hinting at a flamenco flare. His previous single, 'Nothing New (Under The Sun)' featured Grammy-winner, Matt Becks on drums, and was mastered by multi-Grammy-winning, Michael Romanowski, which gained great airplay exposure and press.

A composer, lyricist and singer, René has worked with many artists and bands, including opening for A Flock of Seagulls, Men Without Hats and Lobos, and has performed on many of the historic stages in San Francisco, as well as other cities in the United States. René has shared the stage with Jorge and Carlos Santana, and has performed the National Anthem at Oakland Coliseum Stadium (Oakland, California).

René's bari-tenor harkens back to the days of crooners, such as Frank Sinatra, Elvis Presley and David Bowie (his favorite), yet his Spanish/Latin heritage brings out the core gypsy that inspires his overall performance and energy. Engaging, energized and dramatic; René has that special quality true of the timeless entertainers.
